Goals

Together with my husband, I would like to build a beautiful and happy home on the foundations of Torah and Chassidus. I am strongly committed to creating a harmonious balance between caring for my family and being successful in my career. I am currently living in New York and studying at Ferkauf (a YU graduate school), pursuing a degree in Clinical Child and School Psychology. I love working with children, and I intend to conduct clinical work and assessments with children as a career.

I am looking for a husband who is family oriented, educated, smart, sincere, open-minded, motivated, and who would like to take both his frumkeit and his career seriously. Personality-wise, I am looking for someone who is warm, friendly, positive, fun, and humorous.

Personality

I am a friendly, warm, caring, modest, emotionally intelligent and practical girl. I am a very positive person, and enjoy having fun and making the best out of all situations. I really like meeting new people and spending time with my family. I am originally from Toronto, and I am currently living in New York to attend graduate school.

I graduated with a BSc in Psychology from York University in June, and I just started a graduate program, pursuing a Psy.D in Clinical-Child and School Psychology at Ferkauf in New York. During my time in university, I have stayed closely connected to Chabad and I've continued to learn chitas and chassidus on my own and in shiurim. I would like to marry someone who shares the same values as I do.

In my free time, I really enjoy cooking and baking. I love traveling and doing all types of outdoor activities, including hiking, canoeing, walking and biking. I enjoy exercising, especially playing tennis. I love helping other people and I do a lot of chess. I also enjoy hanging out and having fun with friends.
