34 and 5'8".

I'm a social, smart and easy-going accountant who loves to go out with friends and am blessed to have many friends of all backgrounds and lifestyles. I am hard working - I put myself through college by working during the day and going to school at night - and driven, yet my personality is very laid back. I often think about things (my friends say I think too much) and I very strongly feel that everyone has choices and that people should do things because they believe in them, not because it's the only way they know. I love to go out and I try to take advantage of the many things that New York City has to offer. I am a loyal friend, sister and daughter who treasures her family and friends, and I am someone who is reliable that can be counted upon. I live on the Upper West Side of Manhattan and am the accounting manager at a law firm downtown. When I'm not at the office I get together with friends - we go to shows, restaurants etc. My free time is primarily spent building/maintaining relationships with friends.

What she's looking for: A professional guy who has ambition. She is a real thinker and psychologically oriented, and needs someone who is intelligent, and can appreciate what she has to offer. She would like someone with a sense of humor - , and she loves to laugh and finds a lot of things funny. Self confidence is important to her, and intolerance is not appreciated. She just want a genuine guy who knows how to be a gentleman. She is not religious but is traditional. Her apartment is kosher and has a very strong Jewish identity and am looking for someone who has the same.
